People who live on the farms do a swell job of helping win the war in their own particular way. —producing food. They would do more, too, in other ways if they were not faced by so many minor complications which arise chiefly because they do not have the close and easy contacts which make things easier for people in the city.

A waste paper collection is now being made here. Of course, the paper from the farm is wanted—needed. But to get it is something else again. It would hardly seem practical to use waste paper into town, but it could be brought in without much trouble if someone from the house was coming anyway.

The schools are the hub of activities in this collection. There has been a lot of publicity about it in the Record-Herald.

People in the country who have scrap paper they want to send to war could leave it at one of the city schools. This all came about through a letter from Mrs. Manford Hamilton of Buena Vista. It has been buried under the usual debris on my desk for weeks. Here is her letter:

"I am wondering if the appeal for waste paper for salvage includes the county people, and if so, what are we supposed to do about it. The day before the last collection of paper by the Scouts, I took some bundles into town for salvage. I asked a number of people where I could leave them, but nobody had any idea. If there is a place, I would appreciate knowing where it is. I hate to burn this paper, but what can one do if he hauls a load of paper ten miles and then cannot find a place to leave it."

I imagine a good many country people have been in the same predicament. Maybe the school collection plan will be the answer.

All of the rayon is not being woven into women's hose and a few of those other garments that are worn next to the epidermis, and I know you will be surprised when you learn that total rayon production in 1944 will exceed 700,000,000 pounds, according to the Textile World.

As a matter of fact a large portion of the rayon produced is going into motor vehicle tires and 240,000,000 pounds of high-tensile yarn is being allocated for use in tires this year.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN FILLED BATHTUB

No Evidence of Foul Play But Probe Started

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—(P)—Georgette Bauerdorf, 20-year-old daughter of a retired oil executive, was found dead in a filled bathtub in her apartment yesterday.

The body, apparently dead several hours, was discovered after the wife of the apartment house manager investigated an open door to the apartment. A small piece of wash cloth or towel dangled from Miss Bauerdorf's mouth. Inspector William Pen-prase said.

He said her death probably resulted from an accident, but that it warranted a further inquiry.

A large quantity of jewelry was found undisturbed, and there were no marks on her body. Bloodstains on the tub, Pen-prase said, probably were from her nose or mouth which she may have injured in a fall.

She was the daughter of George Bauerdorf, former New York oil executive, who with Mrs. Bauerdorf, the girl's step-mother, reportedly was in New York on a vacation.

Nip Fleet Fails To Give Battle as Broadening Offense in Mikado's Dooryard Knocks Out 93 Ships and 310
Planes in Five Days

By LEONARD MILLIMAN

Strong formations of U. S. carrier planes sweeping to within 100 miles of the China coast destroyed 221 Japanese planes, sank or damaged 35 ships and bombed Formosa from end to end, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The attack Wednesday (U. S. Time) was the heaviest blow in a series of daring strikes this week along more than 2,000 miles of Japan's inner defense line which included new carrier raids on the Philippines and destruction of vital oil refineries at Balikpapan, Borneo.

Tokyo reported today the Pacific fleet struck for the fifth time in five days with a repeat performance over Formosa Thursday (U. S. Time). The raids on the Philippines, Formosa, the Ryukyu islands and Marcus, cost the Japanese 310 planes destroyed, 93 surface craft sunk or damaged, and demonstrated the fleet's ability to strike almost simultaneously at widely scattered targets.

BRITISH FORCE IS ALL SET TO INVADE GREECE

B-U-L-L-E-T-I-N
ROME, Oct. 13.—(P)—Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean, said in a broadcast tonight that "a force under my command is about to land in Greece" and that the kingdom's liberation was at hand.

Unofficial reports said that the Greek flag was flying over the Acropolis in Athens and that the Athens radio was in Allied hands.

Late in September, small British forces landed in the Peloponnese, the large southern peninsula of the Greek mainland, and with Greek patriots cleared the Germans from most of that area capturing Patrai, Pyrgos and Corinth. Ancient Corinth is but 40 miles southwest of Athens, the Greek capital.

Gen. Wilson's broadcast tonight indicated an Allied landing in force was imminent, as contrasted to the rather small forces employed in the Peloponnese.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—(P)—The War Production Board has authorized the Monarch Aluminum Manufacturing Co. to use 3,500,000 pound of aluminum for manufacture of $1,716,000 worth of sauce pans, skillets, dutch ovens and other aluminum ware.

When will the first post-war cars start rolling?

Even on this automobile men do not agree. Their estimates range from 90 days to 6 or 8 months after Germany folds. A good guess is: Four months.

Why should it take that long?

The auto industry will have to convert from war to peace production. That takes time: New ma-

Russians Crack Memel Line
And in South Dash Over
Hungary to Austria

By DANIEL DELUCE

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—(P)—Russian tanks and infantry stormed the centuries-old Junkers lands of East Prussia, barely nine miles northeast of the important city of Tilsit today, while in doomed Hungary the victorious Red army raced for the 160-mile-distant Austrian frontier.

The East Prussian frontier was cracked in the Memel sector. Hitler annexed this region from Lithuania in 1939 thus recovering territory which was held by Germany for hundreds of years before the first World War.

Great offensives against the northern and southern extremity of the Reich rolled back maimed German divisions like driftwood in a flood.

Hungary's admission of defeat was expected hourly as Russian columns were converging on Budapest along the main rail lines, approximately 60 miles east of the capital and reportedly less than that on the south. All major communications between Hungary and Serbia were reported in Russian hands.

No natural barriers stood in the way of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's four-pronged blitz on Budapest across the Hungarian plains.

Russian forces were less than 15 miles from the only Hungarian rail lines connecting Budapest with Magyar troops at the Carpathian passes in Ruthenia. The routed German-Hungarian forces in northern Transylvania virtually were cut off.

Southern Hungary was a race-track for Russian armor. The Hungarians were reported resigned to the immediate loss of Kees-kemet, rich provincial city 49 miles southeast of Budapest.

Wilting Hungarian resistance all along the invasion front seemed to substantiate diplomatic hints that the exhausted satellite nation

'Elect Us Or Be Sorry'
Is Theme of Campaign

Bricker Declares Armed Forces Should Protect American
Interests Around the World

(By the Associated Press)
An outpouring of appeals to the voters, covering foreign affairs, jobs, freedom and economy, swept over the country today, settling down largely to this: Elect our side or be sorry.

Two examples:
Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) told the Free Italian American Labor Council in New York that the presidential election is "a part of the war" and will determine how soon the war will end. Praising President Roosevelt, Pepper said Republican Nominee Dewey and the men around him "hate" England and Russia and "do not intend to wage war with either."

Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) said in a St. Louis speech that under the Roosevelt administration, "our government is exactly the kind of government the men who signed the Declaration of Independence and wrote the Constitution planned against."

Roosevelt Liabilities
Senator Johnson (D., Colo.) told Washington reporters he thought Mrs. Roosevelt was wisely staying out of the campaign, but that the president's campaign managers "ought to put Earl Browder, Sidney Hillman and Henry Wallace in cold storage along with Eleanor." Johnson has been a frequent critic of the New Deal.

Senator Ball (R., Minn.) said in a statement a Washington news conference he thought a vital need in the campaign is "clear, unequivocal expressions from both Mr. Roosevelt and Gov. Dewey on the terms of American participation in a world security organization." The young Republican senator said his own decision as to which to support will depend on what they say on this issue.

President Roosevelt observed chines, and so on.

How many cars are there now? About 23 million, 4 million less than at the time of Pearl Harbor. There are only 19,000 new cars left, unsold, and being doled.

Will the new post-war cars be rationed?

Automobile men here say they "suspect" they will be. The government has announced no decision.

Just Superstition, Eh?

Friday, the Thirteenth, Unlucky by Mere Coincidence, Maybe

By ED CREACH

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(P)—Of course it's just superstition that Friday, or the 13th of the month, or Friday the 13th, is unlucky.

It's just an old wheeze like "Friday's a dry day" or—Hm, come to think of it the country did go dry, or at least the 18th amendment went into effect, on a Friday.

Pure coincidence, of course.

Maybe Friday wasn't lucky, either for Solomon Grundy—"born on Monday, buried on Friday"—or for the speculators who lost their bibs and tuckers in Wall Street's "black Friday."

But what does that prove about the 13th?

Well, the records show that an earthquake in Ecuador killed 200 on May 13, 1942 and a mine disaster at Cherry, Ill., claimed 259 lives on Nov. 13, 1909.

It was on Dec. 13, 1941, that Hungary and Bulgaria declared war on the United States—an unlucky day for Hungary and Bulgaria—and on May 13, 1940, that the Netherlands forces capitulated to the Germans.

The first blood of the American Revolution was shed at Westminster, Vt., on March 13, 1775, and the United States declared war on Mexico on May 13, 1846. Long before the 13th amendment abolished slavery, 13 slaves were put to death in New York.

All coincidence, of course, with no more meaning than the old Pennsylvania Dutch belief that fairies invade your house on Fridays. They won't hurt you if you say, "A blessing attend their departing and traveling, this day is Friday and they will not hear us."

Nobody believes in that sort of thing nowadays, but this being Friday the 13th, and just to be on the safe side, shall we repeat in chorus:

"A blessing attend..."

BAYONETS USED BY DOUGHBOYS
TO DIG NAZIS OUT OF SEWERS
AND CELLARS IN TOUGH FIGHT

Opposition Surprisingly Weak as Americans Move Slowly
Through Outskirts—Bitter Fighting Flares in Holland
And Belgium and in Metz—Advance Started in Italy After Aerial Attack Made To Break Muddy Stalemate

(By the Associated Press)

A famous American infantry division fought its way today into Aachen proper, once the proud capital of Charlemagne but now a smoking hulk of old ruins, after capturing all the suburban Schlachhof factory district on the northeastern outskirts.

The Germans wheeled up reinforcements, including one of their finest tank divisions, in a last minute attempt to save the great frontier city of 165,000. The enemy counterattacked heavily at Bardenberg.

Opposition was surprisingly weak as the doughboys entered the city, which had been bombed and blasted for two days by hundreds of divebombers and an almost solid ring of heavy artillery plunging shells by the thousands into its ancient structures.

The Americans entered the city itself at 9:30 A. M. (4:30 A. M. Eastern War Time) along a path blasted by artillery and mortars. The Yankees gingerly crossed 16 rows of tracks and started routing out dirty and bearded Germans holed up in the narrow streets which were cluttered with debris. The fighting was at close quarters, sometimes with bayonets, sometimes with small arms and it went from house to house, from street to street. Self-propelled artillery moved into the city with the infantry.

L. Col. Derrill M. Daniel of Geneva, N. Y., pointed out the line of attack.

"It's very slow going," he said, "because the boys have to search every room, cellar, outhouse and well where the enemy might be hiding."

Shoot at Everything
Asked what the guns were shooting at, Daniel said "they are shooting up everything they can to make the Germans keep their heads down. If there is a house-top which looks like a good observation point they take a crack at it."

While Smoot and Weeks led their units into the edge of Aachen proper, Lt. Beasor Walker of Tuscaloosa, Ala., waited for the signal to cross the railway tracks.

"When you stop those Krauts from shooting from the west," Daniel told Smoot, "I'll send Walker in."

Smoot reported back that the Germans were not resisting as stubbornly as had been anticipated and were surrendering at every chance they got.

"We have taken 13 prisoners who are pretty docile and 'we are doing all right,' he said.

"Well, Walker is champing at the bit, waiting to go so let me know when you have things under control," the Colonel said.

Others watching the battle from a window included Lt. Allan Orrenman of Conneaut, Ohio.

While the fighting carried into Aachen shells and bombs poured on enemy troops and armor moving along secondary roads in the vicinity of Rohe, five miles north-east of Aachen.

The enemy kept his columns off the main roads and no traffic moved on broad Adolf Hitler Highway from the direction of Cologne. But on the side roads there was a heavy movement of troops toward Aachen.

The Americans fought near fires in many parts of the old city.

Tank Battle Looms
The appearance of a fresh German armored division, shifted from the Arnhem sector in Holland, stirred expectation that a major tank battle soon would be joined.

Aachen, a city of 165,000 and the largest German town yet invested, was dissolving under the weight of American shells and bombs, but there was no sign of a break in the 1,500 to 2,000 Nazi SS troops who fought from the overseas.

"Dearest Sweetheart: Maybe I am wrong but my life may bring back Anna Mary's little baby. If I hadn't left this wouldn't have happened."

Detective Sergeant Russell Pfauhl said the note evidently was meant for Mrs. Elworth's sailor husband whom she married three months ago in Berkeley, Calif., and who now is at sea. Pfauhl said Mrs. Elworth had lived with Mrs. Thompson for some time, and that when she left the mother hired the nurse who Saturday took Ronnie and disappeared.

Mrs. Elworth then returned to live with Mrs. Thompson.

Question Marks Over New Cars

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(P)—Who gets the first new cars when Germany quits? And how soon? The price? Will they be rationed? And what will they look like?

The honest answer is: At this time no one seems to know the answer except to the last question: What will they look like?

There is pretty general agreement that the first of the new cars—except for some appearance changes like a new hood line or a

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Here's a new crisis to watch: The effort of a strong Spanish Republican movement to start a rebellion against Generalissimo Franco and reestablish the Republic which he overthrew in 1939 in one of the bloodiest civil wars of history.

It's significant that the Moscow radio has been urging Spaniards to revolt against Franco. During the civil war Russia supported the Republican government, which included strong Communist elements. Franco had the heavy backing of both Germany and Italy, and it's the German retreat from the Spanish borders in face of the Allied invasion of France that encourages the Republicans to strike.

Working of the anti-Franco ferment has been apparent for a long time. The latest development came yesterday when the Toulouse (France) radio stated that the "Supreme Junta of the Spanish National Union" (an organization set up by exiled Republicans in France to oppose Franco) had called on patriotic Spaniards to rise.

These Spanish exiles are reported to total 40,000 in southern France. Units of the organization have been raiding Spanish territory for ten days or more, and on October 6 it was reported that there had been a clash between the raiders and a Spanish garrison.

Should a revolt eventuate, the circumstances will be far different than in the last upheaval. Then Hitler and Mussolini not only provided Franco with great quantities of war supplies, but with large numbers of fighting men. The Republican government, on the other hand, was terribly hard pressed to find resources. It received its chief foreign aid from Russia, and communications between the two countries for movement of supplies was extremely difficult.

Now, with Italy out cold and Hitlerdom hanging on the ropes, the generalissimo would seem to be dependent on his own resources—and they're slim. The Republicans certainly must be hoping that this time they will have great assistance from Russian sources, in view of the Moscow radio's urgent call for rebellion.

When Franco took over the country in 1939, after nearly three years of war, the devastation was terrific. There was a great shortage of raw materials and manufactured goods. The country's finances were in chaos. Naturally, with a world war raging about him, he hasn't had much chance for recovery. He certainly isn't prepared to embark on another conflict.

Franco's position may be complicated by the fact that throughout most of the European war he has given his moral and material support to his friends, Hitler and Mussolini. His attitude has caused difficulties with Washington and London, both of whom have protested repeatedly against numerous violations of neutrality, including shipment of vital war materials to Germany and allowing Axis agents to operate from Spanish territory. Moscow also more than once pointed out grimly that Spanish soldiers were fighting among German forces against Russia.

Early this year Washington put the screws on Franco by temporarily suspending oil shipments to him from the Caribbean area. This, perhaps coupled with the falling fortunes of Fuehrer Hitler, seemed to have a salutary effect, for relations between Madrid and the Anglo-American Allies have been easier of late.

We can't close our article without this note: Spain isn't by any means the only European country threatened with political upheaval. The World War has bred many similar situations.

Sugar Grove Church Will Celebrate Its 100 Anniversary Next Sunday

First House of Worship Was of Hewed Logs—Services Held in Rowe Home for 18 Years

Sunday the Sugar Grove Methodist Church will celebrate its 100th birthday.

Actually, the church was born in 1816 when the first Methodist Episcopal Society in Perry Township was organized at Jesse Rowe's home. Services were held in his home for 18 years until he had a hewed log house built on Sugar Creek. David Garringer, an early pioneer and carpenter, helped build it.

Other services were held in a log schoolhouse on Sugar Creek and it was not until 1851 that the first church was built on the location of the present church—it was a frame structure and cost about $900. The plot of ground for the church was given by William Rush.

Rev. J. M. Jamison was presiding elder and Barton Lowe, H. F. Green and E. H. Dixon, pastors when the building was dedicated. Since the organization of the Sugar Grove Society, some of the descendants of Rev. John King, one of the organizers, have lived and attended almost every service since 1820.

In 1889, the frame building was in need of repair and a contract was made for the work of repairing the church. However, a disagreement among the trustees resulted in the decision that a new church be built. The cornerstone for the present brick building was laid July 20, 1889. The same year it was dedicated by Bishop Moore. Rev. M. W. Acton was pastor at that time.

Program for Sunday
A centennial program will mark the anniversary at 2:30 P. M. Sunday. A basket dinner is to be served at noon after the regular morning worship service.

Omar F. Sturgeon will read a history of the church on the afternoon program. Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood is to speak on Methodist Churches in Mexico. Two musical numbers will be a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson and two violin solos by Miss Mazie Kessler.

Rev. F. M. Moon, present pastor of the church, will offer prayer at the beginning of the program. Another feature will be recognition of past pastors of the church who have been invited to the celebration.

Pastors of the church beginning with 1844 are: J. W. Keeley and Valentine Beaman; 1846, James B. Austin and Archibald Fleming; 1847, Archibald Fleming and Zillart C. Townsley; 1848, Thomas W. WHS BAND WILL MARCH ON FIELD AT HILLSBORO

Only Out of Town Appearance Will Be for Friday Night Contest

The WHS band will make its only out-of-town appearance at Hillsboro Friday night at the Hillsboro homecoming game.

At the half, the band will go into the same heart formation which honored the homecoming queen here, William B. Clift, director said. The heart will be made with field lights on at Hillsboro, however. Drum Major Toby Eckle will escort the Hillsboro queen to the center of the heart as the band plays, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," just as she did for Ruth Adams here last week.

The band will reverse into the regular W formation for the alma mater after the heart. Before the game, the band will make HI for the Hillsboro crowd as a greeting, Clift said.

The Hillsboro band, directed by George Miller, is marching in a parade before the game and probably will not be on the field before the game. However, at the half they will make a W for Washingtonians, then break into OHIO to play "Beautiful Ohio." Their last formation will be an H and alma mater for Hillsboro.

SEVENTH GRADE HOME ROOM AHEAD AGAIN

Joan Browning Leads in Individual Sales

Mrs. John Alton's seventh grade home room for the second consecutive day led the rest of the high school in total magazine subscriptions sold Thursday, it was reported.

Joan Browning stood at the top of the list of individual salesmen with $34.50 to her credit. Altogether, $343 in subscriptions were sold throughout the high school. That brings the total sales close enough to brush the $1,000 mark, it is said. The goal for the school is $3,000.

JUST A FRIENDLY CHAT

God first created man, then He created woman. When did He get the bone that He made woman from? He did not take a bone from man's foot to make woman, so man could trample her down and walk upon her. He did not take a bone from man's head to make woman, so as to make woman more intelligent than man and deal out orders to him. But God took a bone—a rib from man's side to make him a help mate, so she would be on an equal with him. But we have a failure of woman on record, it is one of subjection to God and His order. The woman was to be a help mate for the man, and as Scripture everywhere teaches, was to be in subjection to him. But Eve did not carry this out. She takes matters in her own hands and proceeds to reason and act on a momentous question, without even consulting Adam, and that against the direct commandment of God. How many millions have done so since?—and today. Before Eve takes of the fruit, she sins against God, for she adds to the prohibition and subtracts from the penalty. God had said that she should not eat it. Eve adds, "Neither shall ye touch it," making God a mere arbitrary master. God had said, "Ye shall surely die," she merely, "Let ye die." Man has greatly enlarged on this sin of Eve by adding to and taking away from the simple commandments of God. We all seem to have the Satan instilled nature of our mother Eve. Satan having succeeded in his first attempt to deceive mankind, comes out brazen and bold now and instead of asking a question, makes a positive declaration, "Ye shall not surely die." All that is implied in this first statement of Satan we, the human race, have never learned, but the terrible consequences are too apparent to be denied. If we can understand the purpose of Satan in this temptation, we will know his purpose in all temptations. Satan's primary purpose is not against man, but through man against God. Satan's secondary purpose is to make us self-sufficient so that we will worship ourselves as gods instead of the true God. To complete his conquest Satan offers an inducement, "Ye shall be as gods," or like God. So his purpose is to exalt man to the place of God by the acquisitions of knowledge, which is contrary to the law of God. The point is that God had denied Eve the privilege of becoming like Him, so Satan led her to believe that this might be attained by eating of the tree of knowledge. Satan is the promoter of all systems of religion that teach good, work mortality and human attainment as a means of salvation. He has counterfeited everything that God has instituted, even the counterfeited Christ's. Satan is well pleased with all movements that seek to lift man up and better his condition by any other means rather than faith in Christ. He is seeking to discount the work of God by offering a substitute. This is Satan's plan, but friends, his plan failed while in Heaven and he was cast out. Now he is trying to get man to do the same thing that he failed in himself. This alone is proof that Satan's doctrine is a fake. Salvation by education and self improvement is his plan, instead of simple faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, God's plan is, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved—for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts 16:31, 41:2.

The Game of War

The fighting of the Allies and the Germans lately, on the Siegfried Line, has been surprisingly like a football game. The contestants, almost equal in strength, have surged back and forth in tremendous efforts to reach other's goals and score a touchdown. The violence and scope of the struggle has made it necessary to carry thousands off the field and bring in ever new replacements. It is, of course, a game pursued in earnest, not play. Yet to an angel looking down from the edge of a cloud, it might seem much the same.

And let us hope there are really angels behind the clouds, capable of understanding this bitter game. There must be a method and purpose in all the struggle and suffering and a suitable reward of glory, honor and peace for the players. Especially peace.

Anxiety About Cars

The Office of Defense Transportation has become seriously concerned over the scrapping of passenger cars. Since the beginning of the war, nearly 4,000,000 cars have left the road for good. In 1942, 1,000,000 disappeared. In 1943, the number rose to 1,250,000, and the present estimate is that 1,500,000 will be scrapped this year. So in 1945 only 23,750,000 will be left.

One hopeful factor is that car owners have learned to take better care of their cars. Another is that they have been driving less. The average age of a car, which used to be four and a half years, is now seven years. Many 1937 and 1936 cars which have been well cared for are still on the roads, in good shape. Later models, handled prudently from the beginning, are pointed toward long lives. But older cars, abused from their youth, are vanishing very fast.

The private passenger car is not merely a pleasure vehicle or convenient means of getting to work. It provides 75 percent of essential wartime transport. So it is important to give the jalopy the best of codding in its old age. Keep it alive and going if possible. A few new cars will be made in 1945, but the good old clatter-wagon is not likely to find replacement in less than two years.

Which Is Most Dangerous?

The little steel formula has been broken. The punch drunk experts are muttering, "Here we go again," while the OPA has announced an all-embracing price control program to go into effect after Germany falls, when reconversion commences.

Out of this comic opera of men against nature, the ordinary citizen, whose activities are already slowed to a crawl in a tangle of regulation, is faced with the appalling prospect of having to make the readjustment to peace under the handicap of even more regulation. Instead of getting simpler as the war crisis subsides, the rules are getting increasingly complicated. The OPA admits that price ceilings in regard to products which reappear in the market as the result of gradual reconversion, will have to vary from industry to industry, in some cases from company to

Sea-faring Cat Takes a Mouse

FRANKLIN, Ind.—(AP)—Ensign Robert W. Demaree, U. S. N., wrote home that he needed two catnip mice—for "Thomas," a mascot of his LST craft.

It seems the 1st crew adopted Thomas in a port during the invasion of France. Thomas quickly earned the rating DC 1-C (dog chaser, first class) by routing a pooch that once tried to take over the ship.

Moreover, Ensign Demaree wrote, Thomas has a tabby in every port, has been AWOL at least twice and that this sea-goin' feline likes his little nip—Catnip.

Today's Horoscope

If you have a birthday today, you have the qualities of a great leader. You can grasp any situation quickly and accurately, and your judgment is good. You have an excellent memory, learn readily and can command the attention and respect of others. You require a strong love and like attention. Your next year should be productive of unexpected gains and much happiness. Beware of doubtful financial propositions, however. Be satisfied with good, steady progress. This period favors courtship and marriage. The child born today will be helped and hindered by elderly relatives. He or she will be highly strung, and liable to unexpected reversals through law and unwise speculation.

company. There may be 100 different ceiling prices for the same item produced by 100 different firms. According to OPA, the nightmare of regulation is to be continued until "there is no longer any danger of inflationary price increases."

With wages on the verge of another upward spiral, thus again putting the squeeze on farm producers, manufacturers and retail business, it will probably be a long time before the "danger" of inflation is over. It looks as though the people will have to choose between the danger of inflation and the danger of increasing and burdensome government control.

Tobacco Situation

Happy are the smokers who were foresighted enough to lay in cigaret supplies months ago. Week by week lately, the store shelves have been emptying and the smokers' own supplies diminishing. It is hard to fight a war without this consoling weed, whether in action or the home front. The former seems to be in better shape so far, as regards smokes, because the military supply people were foresighted enough to lay up large stores. And surely nobody will begrudge this consolation to the fighting men, although a lot of smokers are kicking themselves for their own thriftlessness.

All is not lost, however. In most places there seems to be a pretty good supply of pipe tobacco. The outcome may be a rather general return of smokers to the old-fashioned pipe. There might even be a boom in pipes again. Such consolation, once reinstated, might continue for quite a while.

The White Blood Cells

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

YESTERDAY we discussed anemia which is the disorder of the red cells of the blood. And we explained why our knowledge of them and ability to find out their condition is so exact. But there is another kind of cell in the blood, the white cell, which we will discuss today.

My friend, Dr. Russell Haden, of Cleveland, says the red blood cell is the most interesting cell in the body. I think he says this because the red cell is the only cell in the body which does not have a nucleus; it can never divide and multiply. And Russell is a kind hearted gink and the thought of this poor little cell deprived of its natural heritage and never to have the prospect of raising a family just draws all his sympathy out for it.

To me the most interesting cell in the body is the white blood cell. Our means of studying it are just as accurate as those for studying the red cell. We can count how many white cells there are in a given amount (a cubic millimeter) of blood. We do it in the same way and by the same beautifully ruled microscopic counting chamber under the microscope as we use for counting the red cells.

Number of White Cells

And, as in the case of the red cells which number six million cells per cubic millimeter, the white cells in health in young and old, male and female, remain with remarkable constancy at about five thousand per cubic millimeter. However, they respond far more delicately than the red cells to upsets in bodily conditions. Their other names are the phagocytes, or scavengers of the body, because their prime duty is to engulf and destroy any invading germs. In doing this they usually are destroyed themselves and they are constantly dying on the barricades and outer defenses of the body—on the surface of the membranes of the nose and mouth and conjunctiva of the eye and all along the intestinal tract. The daily mortality in the entire body is several million a day and these have to be replaced, so the manufacturing centers of the white blood cells—the bone marrow and the lymph nodes—are kept busy filling the ranks of the lost battalions.

Since these white cells fight invasion and infection of the body by bacteria, whenever a severe infection occurs they are increased in number. And since we can count them so accurately, and estimate the increase to an accurate figure, this estimate is of great diagnostic help in determining whether an inner concealed infection is the cause of certain symptoms or not. In appendicitis, for instance, the leucocyte count is of great diagnostic value. Also in pneumonia. The condition of increased leucocytes in the circulating blood is called leucocytosis.

In some infections for reasons which we do not really understand at all, there is no increase in the leucocytes—no leucocyte response. Notable in this group is typhoid fever and our more frequent modern equivalent for it—undulant fever. Also measles. A reason commonly advanced for this is that in these diseases there is no pus formation and a leucocytosis means pus, or pus infection. But in refutation some of the highest leucocyte counts we get are often found in whooping cough when it may go to 100,000. And whooping cough is not a pus former.

Another set of diseases in which the white cell count goes very high are the leukemias. These are diseases of the blood forming tissues—the bone marrow, or the lymph nodes. They are treated by treating the marrow or nodes with X-ray and by administering arsenic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
F. M. L.:—What is meant by goiter "kicking back" after a goiter operation two years ago?
Answer: Goiter operations do not remove all the thyroid tissue in most instances, and even a small remnant may start activity again.

C. W. A.:—Since carbon dioxide is a waste product in the human body and is thrown off why should we drink the gas in carbonated water? Will it do any harm?
A.: The amount of carbon dioxide consumed in carbonated drinks is extremely small compared to the amount we consume in our food, or rather that results from the oxygenation of carbon in our food. Carbon dioxide is, it is true, thrown off from the body, but it is also used while in the blood to maintain the neutralization level of the blood.

E. Z., Little Rock, Ark.:—After the age of forty is it better to keep a little underweight or a little overweight?
A.: Emerson is responsible for the statement that after that age mortality increases one per cent for every pound of overweight. An old Scotch proverb says—"If ye wad live long, keep a wee bit punny." And Gellert Burgess thought "eating should be an art, not an industry." Also Cornaro said—"The food we eat does not do us as much good as the food from which we abstain."

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

AT THE END of the first week it was certain that, barring some utterly unforeseen complication, the operation on Mrs. Reynolds was a success and she would be better off than before. Mrs. Reynolds herself talked to Dr. Raynor from a telephone run to her bedside. It was a momentous occasion in the history of the hospital. Dr. Banning said that before very long the patient could be taken home, where she would have to continue in bed for a while, but he was sure that by Labor Day she would be riding her wheel chair about the streets of Talbot as before.

Russell came to see her late that afternoon, and the old lady's eyes were bright. "I'm going to give orders around here for the first time in ages," she declared. "Anne, you're dismissed in Russell's car tomorrow morning. He can bring you back then. Meanwhile he's to do whatever you say and take you wherever you want to go. And Anne, you're to have a proper night at home. Call your doctor up again from there. Because it is your home, and I don't want you to get out of the habit of it."

Anne smiled. "All right. I will take time off. I have something important to do."

Once she was out in the street with Russell, he helped her into the car and then said, "Where do we go first? I'll call up Dan and tell him not to wait for me because—"

She shook her head. "No need to call. We're going to your house. I'm your guest for dinner as I've been before—unless you won't have me."

"But Dan—"

"I'm going so I can see Dan and talk to him. I told you the other day it was very important that I have a long talk with him before you two start on your trip. How soon is that going to be?"

He hesitated. "In a way, it depends on you. I could start tomorrow."

"Then you are starting tomorrow. I won't keep you any more."

"Shouldn't we call Dan to tell him you're coming?"

"He's expecting me."

Russell smiled. "Cook's don't like surprises. He has insisted on being chief cook and bottle washer, as he calls it. He may have mulligan stew again."

"I hope so."

Nothing more was said as they drove along. The little patches of wood and made cool, shady stretches along the road. Just before they got into Talbot Anne turned to Russell and said quietly, "Has Dan told you we are married?"

He drew a long deep breath. "I see that he has. You would have said a great deal if it had come to you as a surprise. But I've suspected you knew. I dare say he told you that first night home, the night Dwight and I met him."

"Yes, Anne. He told me."

"I told you, too. At least I told you part of it."

"I was blind, Anne. I won't be any more. And I want to help in any way I can."

"You have helped."

They got out of the car in front of the house. Russell suggested going in first, but she said, "We may as well go in together."

"Dan!" Anne called his name very softly, but somehow the sound reached him. The bowl shook in his hands and he put it down carefully before turning around. He stood and stared. She held out her hand. "Aren't you glad to see me?" she said.

He swallowed a lump in his throat. "I—I don't know."

Her hand dropped. The next instant she ran to him and, putting her arms about his neck, kissed him again and again. He made no move to hold her. She dropped her arms and looked deep into his eyes.

"Don't you want me to kiss you?"

He looked down and moved his hands in a helpless gesture. "I've been working. I'm all sweaty. You—look so beautiful."

She laughed suddenly, happily. "How do you know how I look when you're staring down at you feet?"

"I'm ashamed for you to see me like this."

She put her hand caressingly on his bare arm. "Try so glad to see you—like this. Now won't you look up at me? Bare ankles don't bother me."

"I don't need to look at you to know how beautiful you are. I see you when my eyes are shut. I only wish you couldn't see me."

Taking his face between her hands, she kissed him again tenderly. "What a boy you still are. And I want you to be like that. Never, never change. If I go crazy and ask you, just dump me overboard again. I'll deserve it. May I stay to dinner? I like crabs and beer, too. And real California salad. And I would also like a proper kiss, if you can spare me one."

"He drew back. 'Don't tease me. It isn't fair. I—I'll run and dress.'"

She laughed and blocked the door. "I won't let you out of my sight until you tell me you love me and—forgive me for all my stupidity."

"Forgive me? You're making fun of me. When Russell comes—" stant she ran to him and, putting her arms about his neck, kissed him again and again. He made no move to hold her. She dropped her arms and looked deep into his eyes.

"Don't you want me to kiss you?"

He looked down and moved his hands in a helpless gesture. "I've been working. I'm all sweaty. You—look so beautiful."

"Forgive me? You're making fun of me. When Russell comes—"

"Russell brought me. He's upstairs. Now do you love me?"

"I'll always love you. Nothing can change that. I'll do anything for you. I'll—I'll die if you want me to."

He held out his hand earnestly. She caught it and pulled him toward her.

"But you won't give me a kiss when I ask for it?"

"Don't torture me, Anne. Look at me. Do you want a—tramp like me? It's madness. Dr. Raynor loves you. We'll fix up some way to get rid of me."

"But I don't want to get rid of you." She held out her arms. "Dan, I love you."

He stood back. His voice was husky. "You couldn't. I married you because you were hurt, angry, and—and I thought maybe I could help a little. I was mad. You should have laughed at me. I didn't know Dr. Raynor then. He loves you. You can't help knowing it. I saw it, blind and stupid as I am."

"Yes, he loves me." She spoke slowly, carefully. "You love me too, even if you seem very shy now. You're my husband—and I love you."

"You don't. You pity me. You're sorry for me. I know. It's always been so. Out west I used to go to a house and ask for a meal. I'd get it because I was a 'poor boy.' It was all right then, but this is different. You belong to Dr. Raynor. You're part of his world. When I saw you two together I knew. Look at yourself, then look at me."

"I am looking at you. Dan, I can't see how I could ever have doubted how much I love you. Remember that night in the mountains..."

"No. You're sorry for me now. Then you'd hate me. You'd think of all Dr. Raynor could give you. What can I give you?"

"Love."

"Raynor loves you, too."

She put her hand softly on his arm again. "Dan, Dwight doesn't know anything about love as you know it—and as I know it now. I'd always be incidental to his career."

Yank Cemetery in New Guinea Twilight

EDITORS NOTE: Robert S. Harper, who began his newspaper career in Washington C. H., is now in the Pacific covering the war against Japan for the Ohio State Journal as an accredited war correspondent assigned to General Douglas MacArthur's command. His articles are published in the Record-Herald through the courtesy of the Ohio State Journal.

By ROBERT S. HARPER
SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA WITH U. S. FORCES—

Look, America, upon a soldiers' cemetery in New Guinea and resolve that these men and boys did not die in vain for you.

There is one on every battlefield of this war in the Pacific, some of them quite small, others much larger, but all hold Americans who were dear in the hearts of their loved ones.

Although Gen. MacArthur's strategy has held the barest minimum in this jungle war, men still die and others will fall before final victory is won.

Look now, upon one of these cemeteries. It is evening and the sun is behind the mountains. The sky is still bright, but beneath the densely foliated trees it is already dark. Birds flutter in the tops of palms, calling to their mates, quarreling over the roosting places for the night.

The cemetery lies in one of the last patches of sunlight, the white crosses gleaming as though painted with silver and each with its identification tag telling the name of the fallen hero. The crosses stand in military precision, in lines straight and true.

The men, you remember, stood like this against the enemy when they fell.

You walk down a little path where they have beaten back the creeping jungle so that it never will defile the soil in which these boys lie. The plot shows tender care and continual attention. You know this would make the family back home feel better if they could see this.

Pause and think awhile and a lump comes in your throat. Across the way a group of soldiers stand talking in low tones, they walk off in various directions, in twos and threes, going to graves they know. Here lies comrades who fought beside them and whom they'll never forget.

Black-skinned natives come silently in their bare feet to watch and ponder, perhaps, on the strange events that transformed their island home into a battlefield. They stand and watch, then move on without saying a word.

It is growing dark and the first stars gleam. The mountains that look down on this hallowed spot take on a softness and the trees form into patches of black lace against the sky.

These are the boys, remember, from back home.

These boys made your chocolate sodas, delivered the groceries, took your clothes to the cleaner and pumped your gasoline for your morning drives. These are the when you took those Sunday boys who played football back in the county seats and then didn't get to go to college because the war interfered.

It is dark now, but the grave markers still gleam. The stars are bright and the Southern Cross hangs in the sky.

These are the boys, remember, who stood against the enemy and kept them from your homes.

You look up at the Southern Cross and you think of the Man who died on that cruel wooden Cross to save the world.

It is fitting, however, to think that these boys have the Sign over them through the dark watches of the night

By JACK STINNETT

(First of two articles on the fate of surplus war properties)
WASHINGTON—A lot of the government officials involved are walking around these days shaking their heads sadly over the prospective fate of the Surplus Property Board.

They have been reading the Surplus War Property Disposal Act and the conclusion can be only that SPB has got two strikes on it to start with and a tricky knuckle ball coming over the plate.

In the first place, Congress hasn't passed a war or postwar measure yet on which it so definitely has held the reins. This can mean only delays, while politics and special interests battle it out in committees and on the floor of both chambers.

For example, SPB has only 90 days after it is set up to make a complete report to Congress on these surplus items (not including plants costing less than $5,000,000):

- (1) Aluminum plants and facilities.
- (2) Magnesium plants.
- (3) Synthetic rubber plants.
- (4) Chemical plants.
- (5) Aviation gasoline plants.
- (6) Iron and steel plants.
- (7) Oil pipe lines.

(8) Patents, processes, techniques and inventions.

(9) Aircraft and aircraft parts plants.

(10) Shipyards.

(11) Transportation facilities and equipment.

(12) Radio and electrical equipment.

Descriptions, costs, plans of disposition and an outline of economic problems involved in the disposition also have to be filed.

In addition to that, the SPB has to file its first "progress report" within three months after it is set up and in January, April, July and October of each year thereafter. The reports are to be on the "exercise of its authority and discretion under this act, the status of surplus property disposition, and such other pertinent information on the administration of this act as will enable Congress to evaluate its administration and the need for amendments and related legislation."

Further, the SPB can't dispose of any plants or surplus property costing the government more than $1,000,000 without clearing with the U. S. Attorney General to see if the proposed disposal violates the anti-trust laws. The attorney general's office is given 90 days to study the matter.

In the case of war plants costing the government less than $5,000,000, the Smaller War Plants Corp. must be consulted and an opportunity given to SWPC to finance deals for reconversion.

The War Food Administration, headed by Judge Marvin Jones, is also coming in for a big share. It will be its responsibility to see that no surplus foods are dumped on the market that might result in depressing farm prices.

PLANE ROCKET GUN BLASTING WAY TO VICTORY

Deadly Weapon Perfected at Wright Field Is Now In Wide Use

Many Fayette countians have been working at Wright Field and possibly some of them have been working on some of the secret weapons, which have been perfected there, including the deadly rocket gun which is now in wide use on American planes on all fronts and is blasting the way to victory.

In effect the rocket guns provide air forces with heavy artillery, according to Lieut. Col. H. L. Donicht, chief of the special armament projects of the Air Technical Service Command.

United States fighters began tactical use of rockets several months ago, but only recently have overseas commands allowed public mention of rocket-firing planes. The Air Force story is one of the first giving full details of the weapon's development and uses.

Col. Donicht explains that, unlike the Germans, AAF pilots use rockets principally for air-to-ground firing. The Nazis first used rockets in air-to-air missions—striving to overcome the firepower handicap imposed on their planes by the famous American .50 caliber machine gun. "Rocket-slinging Mustangs, Warhawks and Thunderbolts in the China-Burma-India and South Pacific theaters already have struck decisive blows at Jap landing barges, locomotives, ammo trains, island fortresses, warehouses and other ground targets," he stated. Rocket projectiles are fired from clusters of three paper-plastic tubes hung under each wing. They are ignited electrically by the pilot, who needs only one sight because all tubes are aligned with the sights of his regular guns.

"Potentially," continues the ATSC expert, "a single fighter pilot flying a Thunderbolt with its eight .50 caliber wing guns and six rocket tubes has in a single strike, the fire-power of six Armored Forces tank-busters."

The entire rocket installation, including the rockets themselves, weighs but 450 pounds per plane, and may be jettisoned by the pilot either before or after firing. Although the rocket installations reduce plane performance but little, they can be jettisoned if enemy fighter action demands peak performance. "The rocket has three main sections—fuse, war-head and motor. In the head is a charge of high explosives which is set off by the fuse on impact. The motor generates rocket propulsion—jet gas propelling the projectile through an orifice in the end of the motor. The acceleration of the projectile opens six fins or flat steel plates, hinged so that they fold into the body of the rocket before projection. The fins, like feathers on an arrow, give stable direction to the rocket.

There is no recoil and the pilot may fire the rockets individually or "in train" with the six projectiles leaving the tubes at one-tenth of a second intervals.

WCH Boy in Submarine As Attack Rocks Ship

Submerged in a submarine while depth charges exploded so close the concussion broke light bulbs and blew the paint off the bulkheads—that is only one of the experiences Eugene Beverly, TM 3-c, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Beverly, 917 South North Street, has to tell about his 18 months at sea in one of the submarines which has been decimating the Jap Navy in the Pacific.

Eugene Beverly, TM 3-c

Home for 24 days, the 21 year old torpedoman's mate has other stories up his navy blue sleeve. He can tell of the time his sub was submerged only 60 feet—just a little below periscope depth—when six torpedoes skimmed over the top too close for comfort. Another time, his undersea craft was submerged for 24 hours straight. Beverly did not give reason for that particular maneuver, however.

In spite of the perils of his up and down life, Beverly says he likes submarine service. "We are on the surface most of the time," he explained, although it is mostly at night, he added.

On one foray into Jap waters, Beverly said his submarine picked up two Yank pilots who had

Ohio CIO Council Reaffirms Previous Action

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Labor's no-strike pledge was reaffirmed unanimously last night by the Ohio CIO Council in a resolution "recommending to all CIO affiliates that they likewise pursue this wise and patriotic policy."

The delegates also adopted resolutions declaring that "corporate profits are enormous and industries can well afford to launch and sustain a guaranteed annual wage program;" that the administration of Gov. John W. Bricker has made "every possible effort to discourage registration by the citizens of Ohio" and that state election registration laws should be liberalized; and that "common justice and the public welfare demand an immediate and favorable decision from the War Labor Board" on raising wage ceilings above the Little Steel formula.

HOW IT FEELS UNDER ROBOTS IS DESCRIBED

Sgt. Michael Helfrich Writes From England After Leave Spent in London

A sketch of London as it appears after six years of war and blitz and more lately, robot bombings and a description of how it feels to be under a robot barrage, these are brought home to Mrs. Michael W. Helfrich, 533 Lewis Street, in one of the latest letters she received from her husband, F-Sgt. Helfrich, stationed somewhere in England. The letter was dated September 20.

Of being under robot bombing, Sgt. Helfrich wrote: "We have been going through hell here since I came back (from London). Don't get very much sleep any more. No more than get in bed and we have to hit the foxholes—the buzz bombs have been coming over in formation; they are the most horrible thing in this war yet and now they are dropping large rockets. When they were bombing us I wasn't so scared as I am of these robot planes. All I have to do is hear one and that's enough to scare one to death. . . You'll never know what horrible things they are."

And then about London: "You can stand for half an hour in the main part of London and see every type of soldier in the world except German and Japanese. . . You should see what damage the robots have done and the terrible bombing they went through during the blitz. They have never built up the damage yet and you can see every place you look where a bomb or a robot plane hit. . . I saw Big Ben, London Bridge, the House of Parliament, 10 Downing Street, the Tussauds Wax Museum—this place I spent a half day. They have all the great people carved in wax. They look so real that you couldn't tell the difference if they stood along side of their own statue. The one of our president is wonderful. They have one of General Eisenhower that looks so real I stood at attention—'honest I did.'"

These are only a few excerpts from Sgt. Helfrich's letter. He wrote also of the London fogs and of the threadbare clothing worn by most people because clothing is so strictly rationed there. Food

Dinner Served at Washington Country Club To Ninety Members and Guests of B.P.W.C. Thursday

Mack Sauer, Leesburg, After Dinner Speaker

Ninety members and guests of the Business and Professional Women's Club assembled at the Country Club, Thursday evening, for the serving of the annual "bosses' dinner," at which time Mr. Mack Sauer of Leesburg was the after dinner speaker. The banquet tables were centered with colorful and artistically arranged bouquets of fall garden flowers in varied colors. Centering the speaker's table was a large spray arrangement of chrysanthemums, Tallisman roses, yellow snapdragons, baby mums and other fall flowers in harmonizing colors. Pink, yellow and white tapers further carried out the fall theme used in the decorations. Scattered at random about the tables were lovely autumn leaves, thus completing a tasteful color scheme.

Following the serving and enjoyment of a bountiful fried chicken dinner and accompanying viands, Mrs. Vernice Deafner presided as mistress of ceremonies.

Mrs. Deafner first gave a brief welcoming speech, after which she introduced Miss Christine Van Gordon, state vice-president of the Ohio Federation, who opened her address by complimenting the chapter on having a member of the club, here, on the state board, referring to Miss Helen Slavens, newly-elected state emblem chairman. Miss Van Gordon stated the club was organized twenty-five years ago with the purpose of making a "better business world for better business women." She mentioned the fact that before the present war, the club was international. Miss Van Gordon closed her message by reading an article by Margaret Hickey, newly-elected national president, of St. Louis, Mo. Quoting from the article she said: "It is up to the women of the world to lay the cornerstones for a better peace, now."

Miss Helen Slavens, state emblem chairman, was then introduced and as she explained the background of Business and Professional Women's emblem, she displayed the bronze plaque. Mrs. Deafner then made several announcements of interest to the members, emphasizing especially the district six conference to be held at Cincinnati on November 19. She said a group was planning to attend from here, and urged all officers to contact her for reservations. All members are invited.

Miss Slavens, as recreation chairman of the group, then announced an outdoor picnic is being planned for Monday, October thirtieth, to be held at Cedarhurst.

Mrs. Deafner then turned the program over to Mrs. Edythe Long, general chairman of the public affairs committee, who was in charge of the evening's program, being assisted by Mrs. Deafner, Miss Ruth Sexton, Mrs. Urcel Hays, Miss Adelaide Wigginton and Miss Betty Steen.

Miss Steen was in charge of the musical arrangements, being assisted by Miss Geraldine Smith. Introduced by Mrs. Long, Miss Steen presented her sister, Mrs. L. G. Ball, a graduate of Kentucky Wesleyan College and Science Hill School for Girls, Shelbyville, Ky., who beautifully rendered two vocal numbers accompanied by Miss Steen at the piano.

Mrs. Long then introduced the guest speaker, Mack Sauer, who during the course of his amusing and entertaining address, urged everyone to "buck up and go ahead" during the trying times of today and tomorrow.

Miss Cecil Turton sang two numbers, "In An Old Fashioned Town" and "Cheer Up Do." She is former member of the Lebanon Business and Professional Women's Club and has transferred her membership to the club in this city. Miss Turton is history and guidance teacher at the high school here. The club feels it is fortunate in having Miss Turton as a club member, as she is quite well known in musical circles in Lebanon, and has served the Ohio Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club as state musical chairman for three years. Miss Turton was accompanied by Mrs. E. W. Haggard of Covington, Ky., a sister of Miss Betty Steen.

To climax the activities of the evening, Miss Geraldine Smith asked all to stand and then the "bosses" serenaded the members

Seated are Mrs. Vernice Deafner, president 1944-45; Mrs. Edythe Long, public affairs chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth H. Devins, publicity chairman; Miss Frances White, first president, 1940-41. The home of Mrs. John Moomaw on Dayton Avenue was the scene of the regular business meeting and social gathering of members of the Leadership Training Class of the First Presbyterian Church, at which time Mrs. James Wilson was feted at a miscellaneous shower. The shower was held after the business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Loren Noble.

Mrs. Noble opened the meeting with devotionals, after which she welcomed the new teacher, Mrs. Clark Pensyl. Miss Ann Robinson, secretary, gave her report and following this, it was voted to make a sizeable donation to the National War Fund.

A pink and yellow color motif was carried out in the decorations of the large dining room table when a dainty collation was served by the hostess. The guests found their places at three small tables which were centered with bowls of pink and yellow snapdragons and chrysanthemums, entwined with colorful autumn leaves.

Various entertaining games and contests were conducted by the hostess preceding the serving. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Ronald Cornwell and Miss Ann Robinson.

Mrs. Wilson, a recent bride, was showered by the guests with a large assortment of gifts, for which she sweetly responded to each individual.

Those present were Mrs. Clark Pensyl, Mrs. Ronald Cornwell, Mrs. Richard Rankin, Mrs. Emerson Ludwick, Mrs. Ray Farley, Mrs. J. A. Stewart, Okla., Mrs. Dwight Beatty, Mrs. George Robinson, Mrs. James Wilson, Miss Betty Cook, Miss Florence Cook, Miss Ann Robinson, Mrs. Loren Noble, Mrs. Walter Patton, Mrs. Shirley Wallace, Miss Jean Barger, Mrs. John K. Abernethy, Mrs. Harold Hyer, Miss Helen Simons.

LITTLE EFFORT WILL PREVENT LOSS BY FIRE

Firemen Make Inspections And Stress Fire Prevention

Fire Chief George Hall, in stressing Fire Prevention week, points to the little effort that is usually necessary to eliminate most of the fire hazards, if the property owners will do so.

Particularly is this true in business buildings, where accumulation of waste paper or other highly inflammable material may be the starting point for a disastrous blaze.

Firemen have made inspections where fire dangers are great, and have made recommendations for changes to eliminate all fire hazards possible. Invariably the owners of the property comply with the order, but a few, apparently not realizing the importance of fire prevention, seem to resent such recommendations some fail to comply with the requests of the inspectors.

This being Fire Prevention Week, the dangers of fires through carelessness are being stressed throughout the nation.

Fire Chief Hall, discussing the damage by fires, said:

"Fire is blazing an ever wider path of destruction across the United States. For the seventh successive year, the curve of fire losses has been continuing its upward surge.

"The gravity of this loss is apparent from figures just released by the National Fire Protection Association. These show that the loss of $70 million dollars in 1943 was the largest in any year since 1932, and was 21 percent greater than in 1942.

"Losses are still rising. For the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1944, losses totaled $403,775,000, an increase of nearly 30 percent in a twelve month period. And fires causing losses exceeding $250,000 numbered 56 in the first six months of this year compared to 30 in the entire year of 1940!

"The Association properly points out that such figures do not portray the seriousness of the fire loss. They do not record the hours of lost production and the destruction of machines and men. They do not reveal the fact that more homes are being destroyed or seriously damaged than the nation built despite the housing shortage. They do not show the losses in crops, livestock and farm machinery in a year when the call is for all-out production. Nor do they tell of the ten thousand lives lost and the unknown number permanently maimed and crippled."

In an urgent message to homeowners, farmers, labor and industry, the NFPA urges united action during fire prevention week to eliminate the causes of these fires from the national scene. Referring to the handful of hazards which account for the great majority of fires, the Association concludes its appeal with the statement—"Fire does not boast of a secret weapon. All of the devious ways it attacks are well known. Nevertheless, year after year, largely through our own carelessness and neglect, fire continues to take its staggering toll of death and devastation. The same enthusiasm exerted by each of us in conquering our enemies outside our borders will quickly overcome this enemy within."

FOUND DEAD ON HIGHWAY

With a Buckeye In Congress...

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress, 7th Ohio District

Political Washington has been all agog over the "Battle of the Statler," in which two Navy officers—one an invalid hero of the Battle of Midway—were attacked by several men, reputed to be members of the Teamsters Union, at the conclusion of the dinner meeting at which President Roosevelt had opened his campaign for reelection. The attackers insisted on knowing how the officers were going to vote, and a knock-down fight ensued when an answer was refused. One of the "plug uglies" claimed to be a personal friend of the President and threatened to have the Navy officers disciplined for refusing to pledge their support to the "Commander-in-Chief." While the public press and radio gave much space and attention to the affair and the Army News Service mentioned it in overseas dispatches, the Navy and the Office of War Information censored the news item and prohibited its use. In this connection it will be remembered that both the Navy and the OWI sent a complete report overseas of Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that he would be a candidate for re-election. Resentment over the unwarranted attack against the two Navy heroes, and the attempts of the government to suppress the story thereof, has caused Representative Rankin, anti-New Deal Democrat of Mississippi to announce he would demand a complete and thorough Congressional investigation of the whole matter when the national legislature reconvenes in November.

The Dumbarton Oaks Conference, which started off with such a fanfare of publicity as being destined to prepare for the coming peace, has ended in a deadly silence without the Congress, the press or the American public receiving any authoritative information as to what went on, or what understandings may have been reached. However, rumor has it that representatives of the various United Nations were unable to agree upon any primary method by which they themselves would be governed in case of future international disturbances.

David Lawrence, well known publicist and long a supporter of the President's foreign policy, last week, in his United States News, editorially charged Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt with the responsibility of prolonging the war in Europe, thus making one of the biggest blunders in history, destined to cost thousands of lives, as a result of their failure to properly wage psychological warfare against our enemies, and to follow in the footsteps of Woodrow Wilson, who in World War No. 1 held out hope to the German people if they would overthrow their war-mad leaders and sue for peace. Instead, according to Lawrence, Churchill and Roosevelt have played into the hands of the Nazis by demanding "unconditional surrender," and by threatening dismemberment of Germany and destruction of her industries; thus permitting the Reich propagandists to point out there was nothing left for the German people to do but fight to the bitter end.

Well, just as we predicted, the coffee rationing, which was threatened, has been averted—at least for the time being. However, coffee will be fairly scarce for a time, at least, as will sugar, butter, pork and good cuts of beef. Eggs are becoming more rare, too, with Grade A eggs bringing 55 to 60 cents, and B Grade 50 to 55 cents per dozen in Washington. Incidentally many present restrictions on men's clothing will be lifted soon, but the two pair of trousers to a single suit, and vests for double breasted suits, are still taboo.

Discharged veterans of this war are entitled to be employed without regard to existing manpower controls. No honorably discharged service man will be required to present a certificate of availability or to have his application approved by the United States Employment Service in order to take any job offered him. With the present manpower shortage existing it is hard to discern where our government is being any too condescending to the men who fought and bled in its defense.

The serious drought of the Summer of 1944, which still holds on in many sections of the nation, may bring about national legislation to greatly stimulate water conservation through the granting of Federal aid for the construction of farm ponds and dams, as well as for greatly expanding the programs of constructing flood control and impounding dams on navigable streams.

All Washington, regardless of political affiliation, has been saddened by the news of the death of America's "Happy Warrior"—former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York. Al Smith, the man with the brown derby, was the Presidential candidate of the Democratic Party in 1928. In 1936 he broke with President Roosevelt and supported the Republican candidate, Alf Landon, that year, and again bolted Roosevelt in 1940. He was also one of the outstanding Catholic laymen of the nation. As a man who, by his own efforts and sterling worth, came up from the slums of New York City to a place of leadership in the nation, he became known to almost every man, woman and child in America—a living example of the truism that this is the land of opportunity.

NEGLECTS CHILDREN; SENTENCED TO YEAR

Four Youngsters in Squalor, Mother Has Money

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 13—(AP)—The 31-year-old mother of four children, who police said is receiving money from both her first and second husbands, was sentenced yesterday to a year in the county jail and fined $500 for neglecting the children.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Mulag, was sentenced by Juvenile Court Judge Henry P. Bechenbach after police testified they found her in a tavern early in the morning. When they went to her home they found two half-clothed children huddled on a bed to keep warm and a 12-year-old boy attempting to feed a sick baby, the officers reported.

The court ordered the children placed in a charity home.

TREASURY RECEIPTS ARE EIGHT TIMES 1940 TOTAL

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, said here today that net treasury receipts for the last fiscal year were "eightfold" higher than for the pre-war 1940.

In a speech prepared for delivery to war bond sales leaders of 10 southern states at a noon luncheon, Morgenthau said receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, were "slightly less than $5,500,000,000" and that the total for the year just closed was $44,000,000,000.

Katharine Hepburn, Walter Huston and Turhan Bey head the all-star cast of "Dragon Seed," the mighty new M-G-M film based on Pearl Buck's novel, which opens Sunday at the Fayette Theater. Aline MacMahon and Akim Tamiroff are others who have important roles in the production. "Dragon Seed" is the story of China and the valiant Chinese in their struggle against the Japanese marauders.

Lions To Match Speed Against Power

Although they took a sound 26 to 0 beating at Wilmington two weeks ago and another trouncing by the Greenfield Tigers here last Friday night, there was no need for the Blue Lions of WHS to be too pessimistic as they prepared Friday morning to attack the camp of Hillsboro's Indians in the evening.

Among other things, they had that all-important psychological stimulus of knowing they can cross their opponent's goal line. They did that just a week ago when they literally played the Tigers off their feet in the second period to score their second touchdown of the season. The other, and the first one, was racked up against Chillicothe in the second game of the season. In the first game, the Lions were stopped in their tracks every time they took the offensive and failed to register one first down.

Their aerial attack worked against Chillicothe. It worked against Greenfield, too, and in that game they also turned in their first sizeable gains on the ground.

The "downtown coaches," who make no secret of their admiration of the fighting spirit of the boys, even when they are hopelessly behind in the score, feel there is a possibility that both air and ground attacks may click at Hillsboro—and if they do, there is a good chance for victory.

The Indians gave the flashy Wilmington team a battle that had it groggy. The Hurricane barely pulled the game out of the fire with one of those spectacular passes just before the game ended.

The Wilmington boys have passed the word along to the Lions that the Indians are big and tough. But, Hurricane speed overcome all that. Speed is one of the things the Lions count on, too.

Just what preparations have been made for the Hillsboro game on the practice field this week remain obscure as to detail. Coach Brammer made it plain at the start of the season that he had little interest in publicity and would stick to coaching and let the results speak for themselves.

LION CUBS ARE TO PLAY CHILDREN'S HOME TEAM ON SATURDAY MORNING

All this football practice, sore muscles and bruises, the Blue Lion Cubs have been going through is to have its reward Saturday when the boys of the Washington C. H. Junior High School meet the boys from the Children's Home at Gardner Park Saturday at 10 A. M. in the first of three games that have been booked for them.

Every evening after school, the three-team squad of Cubs has been drilling under the watchful eye of the coach, J. W. Kyler, on their own practice lot on Gregg Street. Saturday morning they will get their chance to put into practice the theories and strategy they have been working on.

Frustrated by rain a week ago, when they were to have played host to the Juniors from Chillicothe, Stephen Brown, the WHS principal, said the Lion Cubs would go to Chillicothe for their first out-of-town game Oct. 19. The game is to start at 4 P. M. On the following Wednesday, Oct. 25, the Chillicothe boys are to come here for a game at 4 P. M. at Gardner Park.

No admission is to be charged for these games, Principal Brown said and expressed the hope that there would be a good turnout. These games, he pointed out, give a good preview of the varsity teams of the future. A crowd on the sidelines would encourage the Cubs and give them a thrill. The main purpose of Junior high School football is to provide supervised recreation and physical training.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(P)—Three games of the Little World Series at Baltimore drew 95,832 cash customers—52,833 Monday night. This probably explains why Baltimore figures so importantly in post-war sports plans. Three or four rival groups want to put pro football teams into the Maryland city. There's talk of building the burned Orioles' ball park on a Major League scale and latest indications are that Baltimore's hockey promoters have Big League ideas. Backing Eddie Shore and the Jacobs brothers in the new amateur ice club are James J. Lacy, who is also interested in one of the football leagues; Jack Slagle, the old Princeton Footballer; and some of the baseball Orioles' officials.

Sportspourri
Juan Amador, 80-year-old from Panama who covered his 12th World Series this year, spent his spare time trying to convince Major Leaguers that some club should train in Panama after the war. Amador reported it isn't unusual for Panamanian fans to watch a ball game in one league during the morning, see a doubleheader in another in the afternoon and attend a boxing match at night. The ones who skip the doubleheader usually visit the race tracks. Johnnie Orr, 17-year-old Illinois U. end, was a nine-letter athlete in four sports at Taylorville, Ill., High School.

Roped and Tied
When Assistant Coach Lili Dimmitt accompanied the Texas Aggies to last week's Oklahoma he wore a real fancy new sport coat. Proud of his new garb, Lili asked an Aggie player what he thought of it. "Too much coat for you, coach," the kid replied soberly. "It looks like a $100 saddle on a $40 horse."

Muskingum Wins With Extra Point

MONTGOMERY, W. Va., Oct. 13.—(AP)—Muskingum College of Ohio converted one point after touchdown last night for the margin of victory over West Virginia Tech's freshman football team, 13-12.

Muskingum drove 80 yards for its first marker in the first period, and 70 yards in the third. Dick Gilmore carried over the winning point after the first touchdown. Tech scored in the first on a 55-yard run by Sam Mann. Ray Woods caught a pass and ran 40 yards for the second just before the half ended.

Ernie Smith Seriously Hurt In Spill in Marysville Race

Ernest Smith, Washington C. H. reinsman and one of the ranking harness horse drivers and trainers of the state, today was laid up with a broken shoulder received in a spill at the start of the second heat of the $2,500 pacing stake for 2:19 pacers at Marysville Thursday.

Reports brought back here by witnesses said that Bob Valley, who also trains his stable at the Fairgrounds here, driving Glamour Girl, cut over as the field moved into the first turn. Queen Day, driven by Smith, went down and Smith was catapulted to the track. These witnesses were inclined to think that the accident was due to over-anxiousness on the part of the drivers although they said they understood that Valley had been fined by the judges and set down for the remainder of the season. There was, however, no official confirmation of any action on the part of the officials.

Queen Day had finished second in the first heat and her backers said they thought she had a good chance to do as well in the second. The mare was scuffed up considerably, but came back for the third heat and finished fourth.

Fighting in Holland
New battles intensified in Holland, north and west of the beleaguered German city.

British forces lunged a mile forward from the right flank of their Dutch salient pointed toward Arnhem and moved within ten miles of the German border. The advance was south of newly captured Overloon.

Supreme headquarters disclosed that Canadians on the south bank of the Schelde estuary had been reinforced and gained new ground beyond their Leopold Canal bridgehead.

Fighting in both areas of Holland was described as desperate. A British staff officer said German forces had shifted one tank division south from the Arnhem sector to Aachen and there were signs of more Germans being moved from the Dutch salient into the Aachen battle zone.

Unbeaten Bowlers Tumbled In Men's City Loop Games

Teams that came out of the first week's bowling matches with clean slates, took a mauling on the Main Street alleys Thursday night when the Men's City League rolled its second round.

Pennington's Bakers, who took a three-game beating last week, opened up with their heavy artillery and took all three games from the previously unbeaten Producers. They had little difficulty in the first and last games but in the middle game they had only 7 pins to spare.

Melvin's Stone Crushers, who made a clean sweep of their opening match, took a two-out-of-three lacing at the hands of the heretofore lowly Slagle & Kirk outfit, which had been white-washed in its opener. The auto parts boys won the first and last games by fairly substantial margins, but dropped the second game when the Stone Crushers splattered the ducks for a 742 total.

Hoff's Marketeers made a clean sweep of their match with Wikle's Vendors as they piled up the evening's top total of 2345 pins.

The Keglers from Mt. Sterling took the first and last games from Jeffersonville's Ringers but hit the skids in the second game when the Ringers racked up 783 pins.

FOREMEN'S CLUB HOLDS MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

Several Out-of-town Members Here for Interesting Session

The newly organized Foremen's Club of Washington C. H., held its second meeting Thursday night, at the Hotel Washington with a number of out-of-town members of Foremen's clubs as guests.

Howard C. Newman, president of the club in Washington C. H., and foreman at the API, presided over the business session and extended welcome to the visitors, which included the following local and out-of-town men:

Leonard Blessing, Dayton Power and Light Co.; Howard Dellinger, Dayton Power and Light Co.; John Moomaw, Cudahy Packing Co.; Carl C. Detwiler, personnel director of the Universal Cooler Co., Marion; and Fred Norton of the Foremen's Club of Columbus.

A report of the national convention held in Cincinnati, was presented, giving those present a better idea of the scope of the organization.

It was announced that there are now 32 members of the club in good standing, and eight applications pending before the board of control.

President Newman emphasized the desire to have all meetings begin promptly at 8 P. M. (fast time) and conclude them on time, 9:45 P. M. Meetings should comprise at least 75 percent educational matters, he said.

J. F. Hively, chairman of the program committee, introduced Bernard Hodapp, vice president of the national association, who took the place of R. McConnell, who had been scheduled to appear but was prevented by press of business.

Hodapp's main point of discussion was the fact that the Foremen's Club of Washington C. H. as well as all other Foremen's Clubs affiliated with the National Association of Foremen, was not organized for collective bargaining nor for profit, but to raise the general standards of foremanship.

Hively introduced Jack Post, Dayton, the main speaker of the evening, who had come up through the ranks for 17 years and was superintendent of the Clark Equipment Co., Buchanan, Mich., for eight years before giving his full time to the National Association of Foremen as managing director.

His theme was "Promoting Foremanship as a Profession," and he declared the foremen are about six years behind other professions in attaining their proper place in industry.

He told the foremen present that they were selected as foremen because they had initiative to learn, were fair and honest in their dealings and skilled in their work.

The reason foremen fail, he said, was due to thinking that they knew it all, and that a foreman's outstanding quality becomes his worst enemy, and to watch it.

He said that every decision made must be based on knowledge and that the prime purpose of the club is to fortify its members with the necessary knowledge so that they will be placed in the proper position to render the correct decision at the right time.

In concluding his address, Post presented President Newman with a gavel.

Fire Chief George Hall was introduced and spoke for a short time on fire prevention and the huge losses that result from fires that frequently start due to someone's carelessness.

Motion pictures showing what communication employees are doing toward the war effort were shown, and Fred G. Rost, manager of the Bell Telephone Co. here, and Fire Chief Hall were given a vote of thanks for their work.

In closing, President Newman assured the visitors from other industries that the club is not an exclusive API club, but is open to all with equal representation.

WOLF IS KILLED IN ROSS COUNTY

Had Been Raiding Farmer's Flocks for Years

A 60-pound coyote or prairie wolf was killed on the Jess Carroll farm in the Pennyroyal community a few miles from Chillicothe while it was molesting a herd of cattle.

The animal was killed by Lem Carroll after he had fired six charges of shot, broke his shotgun over the wolf when it attacked him, and finally finished it with a rifle.

Two dogs which attacked the animal were badly mauled.

Residents of the community state that the animal had been seen there for several years but always vanished, and that it had destroyed large numbers of sheep, pigs, poultry and even killed calves.

The unusual size of the animal is believed to be due to the abundance of food it found on farms in the area where it was killed.

A year or two ago Conservation Officer Chalmers Burns took several shots at a wolf that was seen west of this city, and which he trailed into Highland County.

PROGRESS MADE ON NEW COFFEE SHOP

Work on Washington Hotel Block Nears Completion

The new colonial front for the Hotel Washington Coffee Shop is emerging in final form this week with only the finishing touches yet to be added, including beautiful solid brass hardware.

The hotel management has made special effort to see that all work and all material which could be done or bought through Washington C. H. firms is handled in this way. Definite progress has been made in the alterations of the Washington Hotel business block which promises to be a real community asset in the city's general improvement program.

The Associated Plumbers and Heaters are working on wiring and heating installations. Early colonial brass lighting fixtures of unusual design and attractiveness have been selected. The Wilson Sheet Metal Company is installing the elaborate ventilating system.

Chestnut paneling has just arrived from the hills of southern Ohio, and will be processed at the Coffman Stair Company plant in preparation for use in all wall treatments.

The work will start next week, and this will be followed by installation of one of the most beautiful slate floors in Ohio, patterned after special installations at Purdue University, the West Point Military Academy, and other noted projects.

ger of the Bell Telephone Co. here, and Fire Chief Hall were given a vote of thanks for their work.

In closing, President Newman assured the visitors from other industries that the club is not an exclusive API club, but is open to all with equal representation.

NEW OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY LEGION POST

New Home Mortgage Burned As One of Highlights of Annual Ceremonies

"Three things the boys in the foxholes of the Pacific theater and those who are fighting Hitler's mob can't understand... strikes, absenteeism in war work and why the American public expects to celebrate V-day," declared Floyd Hartpence, state Legion post commander and superintendent of the OS & SO home, Thursday night in addressing Paul H. Hughes Post of the American Legion at its officer installation meeting.

"There's a lot of dissatisfaction among the troops because we here at home are not backing them up 100 percent, and the Legion must do some fast talking when the boys come home. We speak their language, and I believe we can be a big help in post war adjustment of these millions of fighting men."

Following a turkey dinner, served in the recreation room at the Legion home to 130 members and guests, the annual installation of officers for the coming year was held in the auditorium with Rudolph Wolf of Columbus, former resident of the city and past commander of the post, as installing officer.

The new officers are: Charles Morgan, commander; Robert M. Jefferson, first vice commander; Charles Burke, second vice commander; T. H. Craig, Jr., adjutant, and Walter E. Hutton, finance officer. The executive committee—made up of Jesse Maddux, Howard D. Fogle, Glenn Murphy, Charles E. Eakins, W. E. Passmore and R. B. Tharp.

Mortgage Burned One of the highlights of the meeting was the burning of the mortgage on the new home, signifying that the post is debt free and full owner of the building purchased less than two years ago. Herbert Wilson, out-going commander and main promoter of the project, touched the match to the mortgage amid applause from the members.

Opening the meeting City Manager W. L. Stambaugh expressed the greetings of the city government and congratulated the post on its present membership and activities. Lt. A. D. Smith and Patrolman D. L. Osborn of the Highway Police, Jay Holmes, State Americanism chairman of the Legion, George McDonald, of Marion, were special guests and introduced from the platform.

The financial report for 1943, including contributions to both the War Fund and Washington Park, and a report of activities by Commander Wilson concluded the ceremonies. The balance of the evening was spent in congenial groups in the recreation rooms.

MAIL PARCELS BOTH SUNDAY AND MONDAY

Time Extended One Day for Overseas Mailings In This City

So that every parcel possible may reach the men and women in the armed forces overseas, Postmaster W. E. Passmore said Friday that the Post Office would be open Sunday from 10 A. M. until 12 noon and from 2 P. M. until 4 P. M. Sunday, and through-out Monday until 6 P. M., for overseas parcel mailing.

Originally Sunday was the last date for mailing, and decision was reached to keep the office window open for parcels during the above hours on Sunday, and to include all day Monday for the final clean up.

In connection with the announcement, Passmore said that Thursday exceeded all previous days in the number of parcels mailed overseas, with 426 counted, and that the total for the first four days of this week had reached 1444.

Large number of parcels were still being sent Friday, with indications that Saturday would also be a heavy day.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war sure has made a lot of changes in this old world of ours, hasn't it, Judge?"
"Plenty of them, John. One that few people realize is that the rubber producing center of the world is now right here in the United States."
"When the Japs conquered the big natural rubber producing centers of the world they thought they had us licked. But in two short years, thanks to American industry, we are now producing synthetic rubber enough to supply all our military and essential civilian needs."

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the problem was to get the huge amounts of industrial alcohol needed. Almost overnight the country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and converted 100% to the production of this vital ingredient. A high government official said recently this was "...an almost unparalleled example of the overnight conversion of an entire industry from peace to war."
"Come to think of it, Judge, it was a mighty fortunate thing the beverage distilling industry was in existence, wasn't it?"
